Hawkesbury. Blue Grey | 107x107cm | Oil on linen | 2020

The vision we see before us, is a combination of real, experienced landforms, and the landscapes of the psyche. The lines have been blurred, but in shifting the traditional emphasis between sky and land we are provided with a clue that what we see here is less a document of the real than a compelling portrait of the mind. The actual location of the landscapes is not important.

Hawkesbury Reaches | 61x61cm | Oil on linen | 2020

In fact, attempts to solicit a specific geographical location will lessen the psychological import of the canvases. Rather than latching onto any residue of the empirical, Morris invites us up into the clouds, to look down from above, to see the world as he sees it, and to float freely in the land of the imagination.
